A VERTICAL FARMING OF SPINACH IN ME GARAGE

Published on September 9, 2017 by John

« Few months ago, I read an article about vertical farming on La Ferme Digitale. I was very enthusiastic and decided to create a vertical farming of spinach in the garage. And guess what? It works like a charm! I just have to adjust the humidity rate, the lighting, the contribution in manure and that's it! »

FOLLOW THE TRANSPORTATION WITH SENSORS MADE BY ZEST LAB

Published on November 23, 2017 by John

« Another news! We just put sensors made by Zest Lab on pallets where are the crops. In this way, we can follow if they are well packed during transportation and found where they come from and if the products are damaged! »

GROWING BEETROOTS IN ME FARM

Published on November 28, 2017 by John

« Did I tell you that I start to grow beetroots? In any case, we hav' got worries becaus' some beetroots don't come out very well after their trip in the machine! So me friend little Jean lend me a connected beetroot! You just have to plant with the rest and when you harvest them, it'll save them from the bumps they'll have and you can find where the problem comes from. And that's what we've done! »

CYRIL INTRODUCE ME TO AQUAPONICS

Published on December 12, 2017 by John

« I meet a nice guy recently, he called Cyril and do vertical farming as well. He also introduced me to aquaponics, an off-ground cultivation where garbage from an element feeds another one (for example fishes that feed plants). »

INVEST IN A NEW CONNECTED GREENHOUSE

Published on March 1, 2018 by John

« I give in again, I just purchase a connected greenhouse made by Myfood to continue me experiences. The machine is well made, you can introduce around 400 kg of vegetables and 40 kg of fishes per year. It's powered by solar panels and here as well you'll have a bunch of data sent on your mobile phone, on an app that give you farming's advices! Very eager to make me first harvest! (8000 euros) »
