I ADMIT IT, I GIVE UP

Published on September 7, 2017 by John

« Well, I snapped. Just got back from Space, not actual Space, don't worry, but the "Salon International des productions animales" in Rennes. With me friend Jean, we ordered a bunch of connected boxes to a company named Copeeks. They will allow me to track from distance the field while sending data to Telegram on me phone. These things are damn practicals! »

GOT A NEW PRO-SOFTWARE ON ME COMPUTER

Published on December 1, 2017 by John

« Just got off the phone with Kehris, a company which invented these useful softwares for people like me. I asked them to come install a pro-software as they call it, on me computer. It'll help me plan everything I got to do in me farm. Can't remember everything at me age. »

MY BANKER LIKES TO DO LOANS

Published on February 22, 2018 by John

« Nice guy my banker! Whenever I ask him for money he lends me some haha. We won't complain, thanks to this I was able to set up solar panels on the roof and wind turbine in the field. It's my youngest who suggested me to do so. He read a study in L'agence de l'environnement et la maîtrise de l'énergie which said that you can make an extra 15 000 bucks per year whilst helping the environment. Wouldn't want to miss it, right? »

GOT A LOT OF PROBLEMS WITH ME SENSORS

Published on February 28, 2018 by John

« Bloody hell, those sensors they've installed only caused me troubles, one died just like that, and the other one could not send me any data that I needed. So, I cleared everything and called Sencrop, a small company created by two good fellows from north. They're currently setting up small connected weather station or something like that, works like a charm. It sends you rainfall rates, hygrometry, temperature and many more. Hope this time it'll last! »

A HELL OF A CONSTRUCTION SITE FOR THE METHANISOR!

Published on March 2, 2018 by John

« Was a hell of a construction site down here the last few days. Guys just finished building my methanisor: with it get water streams from local farmers, including me friend Jean remember. Wasn't cheap though and I needed to convince everybody. They were scared becaus' of the smell of the machine or even that it'd explode. Happy it's done though: maybe local farmers will start to think about digitalising their farms. »
