LITTLE JEAN SHOWED ME CONNECTED OBJECTS

Published on November 30, 2017 by John

« Today as I was watching me favorite show, Love's in the farm, my friend little Jean came to talk to me about his new hobby. Connected objects. He is mad about all this technology stuff, he's the one who told me to install the internet in me house. If you don't follow me, connected objects as he explained to me are used to receive, treat, gather or send data in real time. For example with this stuff my phone will be able to say to the machine "go feed the cows", or when it's raining directly cut off the spraying, handy stuff. He told me that in 2016 more than 17 millions connected objects were commercialized and in 2021 it'll be more than 27 millions, can ye imagine. Anyways, this is pretty interesting, I'll have to dig in to see what I can do with those connected objects. »

STUDY "CONNECTED SENSORS" WITH UNILASSALE'S STUDENTS

Published on December 4, 2017 by John

« Y'all never guess. This afternoon a group of younglings came to me farm. Some students from UniLassale campus, they offered me to go to an event to study those "connected sensors" I was talking about a few days ago, to help people like me. Of course I said yes! Can't wait to be there! »

GOING TO THE FORUM INTERNATIONAL DE LA ROBOTIQUE!

Published on December 6, 2017 by John

« Don't know what's going on lately but me porch is full lately. This time it's a contractor who came to talk to me about his product. Spoutnic, kind of a big metallic stove on wheels with cameras on it to watch me chickens that I present you two months ago. Also told me I could try Ted, kind of machine that allows weeding the vines during the "Forum International de la Robotique" in Toulouse. Need to buy tickets on the internet before it's too late... How do I fit me cash in that internet?! »

I DISCOVER REUSSIRFERME THANKS TO RAYMOND

Published on December 13, 2017 by John

« This morning, Raymond, the postman, came to give me me mail as usual. Except that today he brought me something other than bills. A magazine called Reussirferme, really interesting piece of paper. It talked about high tech startups in the farm business and how they raised billion dollars to start plenty of new interesting stuff for me farm, like drones or mini satellites or something. »

GET THE NEWS WITH LA FERME DIGITALE!

Published on February 14, 2018 by John

« Me oldest lad Jacob, came to visit me today. Told him about me new interest for connected objects to improve me farm. He told me to subscribe to some newsletters on the internet to be informed about everything that's new. So we found La ferme Digitale, each month they send you the news directly in your virtual mailbox. This month they talked about something on the phone which receives data from plants... Will be checking me virtual mailbox every month now (if I can start the machine by me own) »

A FEW CHANGES IN THE FARM

Published on March 20, 2018 by John

« Since I've got all those visits, I gotta say I'm seriously thinking about changing a few things in me farm, after all who would blame me for making me life a little bit easier. You can leave me a comment below to let me know your opinion if you want. »
